

The Exam Period
Sixth Form Arrangements
2017

Information for students and parents

Year 12:

- You must attend all of your AS lessons up to the exam in each subject.
- You are permitted, however, to have the day off school prior to an exam to revise should you wish to.
- During the exam period (16th May - 9th June) you are not required to stay in school if you don't have a lesson. You can go home if they have a 'private' or 'supervised' study or they can stay in school to study – you MUST sign out
- Once the AS exams are completed in a subject you will no longer be required to attend that subject until the end of the AS exam period (9th June)
- If you study Linear A levels and are not taking the AS exam you are not required to attend those subjects between the following dates: 16th May - 9th June.
- If you are only studying BTEC subjects you are expected to continue to attend all of those lessons
- You are required to be back in lessons in all of your subjects by: 12th June

Yr 12 Art & Photography!

- I believe your coursework deadlines are something like the 5th & 12th June
- Clearly you must still be attending those subjects during the exam period until you have handed in ALL of your coursework to your teachers expectations

Year 13

- You are required to attend your lessons until you have taken the exams in a subject and at that point you are no longer required to attend that subject.
- You are permitted, however, to have the day off school prior to an exam to revise should you wish to.
- During the exam period you are not required to stay in school if you don't have a lesson. You can go home if you have a 'private' or 'supervised' study or you can stay in school to study if you wish.
- If you are a BTEC student you must continue to attend all of your BTEC lessons until you have handed all of your work in, to a standard that is acceptable to the staff. Once you have completed a subject you are not required to attend that subject.
- Any subject that you still need to complete coursework, you still need to attend!
